INFORMATION

The Fairfield Police Department is currently assisting the West Haven Police Department with an investigation that focuses on an individual who resides on Stratfield Rd. in Fairfield.

The individual has been arrested by the West Haven Police Department as a result of gun violations on the campus of the University of New Haven. He was taken into custody shortly after Fairfield Police received the call for assistance and responded to and secured the subject's Stratfield Rd. residence.

Last evening, 12/03/13, we assisted in a search warrant execution at the Stratfield Rd. residence. Although we do not yet fully understand the intent of what this individual was or was not going to do on the UNH campus, we do know he possessed weapons and brought them to the campus.

The Fairfield Police, through our involvement and assistance provided during the investigation, consider this to be a significant incident that originated at the Stratfield Rd. home. However, we currently have no indication that this individual was involved in, or intent on, doing harm to any of our schools in Fairfield. Our investigation into that will continue.

Last evening there was a lot of activity on and around Stratfield Rd. This activity may have raised the level of concern of the parents of students within the Fairfield District. To reiterate, we have yet to find any information indicating this individual intended to do harm to any students within the district, to include Stratfield School, which is near the subject's residence.

As always, we will continue to work closely to keep our schools safe. As our investigation continues we will continue working with the district and our school safety unit to keep you informed.
