

FAIRFIELD PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Education Center

August 29, 2012

Dear Osborn Hill Community:

We are excited for the first day of school at Osborn Hill School tomorrow. All staff members have been working hard preparing the classrooms, hallways, offices and common areas. With new paint throughout the building, in some ways, the school has never looked better.

We are continuing our work to get additional space open once satisfactory test results are received. The most recent test results have been posted on the District's website and test results will continue to be posted as they are received. While the most recent results show improvement, some areas of the school, including the Library Media Center, are not below the EPA-recommended levels.

A number of questions were received after our last update on August 24, and attached to this letter are answers to "most frequently asked questions."

As more information becomes available, we will share it with you immediately, rather than doing so every Friday. We appreciate your patience throughout this summer and look forward to the first day of school.

Sincerely,

David G. Title, Superintendent of Schools

Frank Arnone, Principal
